

IN SACRED WATERS

Turtle Habitat and the Research of John Volpe

Thursday, March 17

Noon – 1:00pm

Building 3, Room 3208

ECC South Campus

John Volpe, an Ojibway, has spent many years researching turtle habitat impacted by a large dairy operation in Attica, NY. His findings are troubling for this fragile ecosystem and the creatures which inhabit it. John will discuss these studies and his concerns regarding the future of wildlife species in the shadow of agricultural operations.

A free presentation hosted by the Environmental Studies Program at Erie Community College South Campus
Dr. Ethel Petrou, Physics Chair